Navreen Mangat explores the world's most romantic hotspots for an unforgettable start to married life

For wildlife enthusiasts

Meno A Kwena, Botswana

Holding a special place in Prince Harry and Meghan Markle's hearts (they've stayed here, if you didn't know), Meno A Kwena in Botswana is the ultimate romantic setting for couples who love vibrant wildlife. Situated on a 100-foot-high clifftop on the Boteti River, accommodation comes in the shape of nine, fully-equipped en-suite tents overlooking the Makgadikgadi Pans National Park. From the comfort of the veranda or even the rocky swimming pool, you've got a great view of the zebras and antelope that also call this area home. Game drives and wildlife-watching boat trips are also available, if you want to fill your Instagram feed with snaps of elephants, wildebeest, lions and cheetahs, too.

For adventurers

Aqua Expeditions, the Amazon River, Peru

What better way to start married life than a once-in-a-lifetime experience together? Jump aboard Aqua Expeditions' small luxury cruise and you'll sail down either the Peruvian section of the iconic Amazon River, or the mighty Mekong. Onboard, each suite has floor-to-ceiling windows for unbeatable views and guests are treated to local cuisine by renowned chefs. Expeditions are led by expert local guides, where couples can travel into the depths of the dense rainforests and kayak, canoe and swim in unspoiled waters. For honeymooners wishing to drench themselves in local culture, activities include visits to local markets and remote villages. Evening excursions offer dreamy stargazing trips and exotic nocturnal animal safaris. If all the adventure tires you both out, there's a lounge and spa for downtime.

For island romance

JOALI, Maldives

This honeymoon hideaway embodies the definitive desert island dream. Located at Muravandhoo island in the northern Maldives, JOALI celebrates the natural, untouched beauty of the island. With white-sand beaches and brilliant blue waters, this hotel provides some well-deserved escapism after the stress of wedding planning. Although there are plenty of different villa types, the water villa is the natural choice, with the crystal-clear Indian Ocean underneath your feet. Newlyweds can explore the island on bikes, enjoy a couples' massage at the spa or watch the sunset over a candlelit dinner on a secluded sandbank.
